

Adjustment of internal emergency plan during the time of coronavirus

It is still possible for an emergency to occur during the time of coronavirus. This is why it is important to align the internal emergency plan as much as possible with corona measures.

Fire

- It is important to ensure that everyone adheres to the prescribed instructions “what to do in the event of a fire”.
- Timely evacuation to the muster point remains important, provided a distance of 1.5 metres from each other is maintained. If necessary, provide an additional alternative muster point if there is insufficient capacity at the original one.
- The fire-fighting team must, if possible, also observe the prescribed distances while dealing with the emergency.
- Check which PPE you already have, and which PPE is required to deal with an emergency; provide/reserve this PPE for emergencies only.
- Ensure direct and indirect contact is kept to a minimum (reading and operating the fire panel, controlling the fire-fighting service, coordinating the emergency situation, exchanging information with emergency services: size of the fire - attempt to extinguish - everyone evacuated).
- Also apply the required hygiene and distance measures after the evacuation and intervention. Clean and disinfect the tools, PPE and fire protection equipment that has been used.

First Aid - Resuscitation

Consult the information sheet, “Adapted information for in-house emergency services”, which can be found in the restart guide.
