

Declaration of commitment in the context of the corona crisis

As manager of COMPANY X, I strive to guarantee continuity in all our business activities. To this end, optimum protection of all our employees, temporary workers, third parties and the environment is strictly necessary.

When in December 2019 the coronavirus, originating presumably from a food market located in the Chinese city of Wuhan, spread all over the world, Belgium did not escape this either. Unfortunately, our organisation, yourself and your immediate surroundings were also confronted with this harsh reality.

As manager of COMPANY X, I am fully aware that during the past period it has been extremely difficult to continue the normal work and activities, both within your professional and private sphere. It has had and continues to have a major impact on general hygiene, mutual contacts, travelling, etc. In short, on all our daily actions.

I would like to thank EVERYONE for their efforts in the fight against coronavirus!

However, time does not stand still and we as an organisation continuously assess possible risks relating to our business activities. As a business manager, I think it is important to restart our business activities with a lot of positivism under the given circumstances, taking into account the current state of knowledge.

Of course, the necessary measures and advice relating to the corona crisis will be strictly adhered to, and the health of everyone remains of paramount importance. I therefore expressly request you to strictly follow the measures imposed so that our activities can be carried out safely and healthily for and by everyone.

Finally, I wish you all continued good cooperation in these extraordinary times, and count on your manoeuvrability, respect for the measures imposed, as well as positive commitment. Cautious but determined, we will join forces and work unitedly...

Be careful and keep yourself and your loved ones healthy!
